I recently formatted my sister's computer without a problem. During windows setup, I left the Administrator password blank. While reinstalling drivers etc, I restarted the computer several times without any conflict. Today, only a few days after all of this, my sister comes to me and says she cannot log on to windows. The log on screen has only one option: Administrator. It asks for a password, but wont accept anything. I've tried leaving the password blank, "admin", "administrator"...nothing. If anyone could help me that would be great.
