Please tell me that's not a Halo B on a Tippmann.....

(For the paintball-illiterate, a Halo B is a loader, A.K.A. "hopper" that feeds paintballs at up to somewhere around 20 rounds per second. This is godly in the paintball world. Unfortunately, a Tippmann 98 can only reach the neighborhood figure of around 6-8 rounds per second, if you have quick fingers. Basically he spent more on the loader than he did on the gun.)

A smidge of advice Kooleo, if you're going to use an electric hopper, best to have an electric marker first.
