So, GMail invites have been coming like crazy lately.

After a long period of Google not giving any out, I got a single one and gave it to a friend of mine. Then, we both got about 10. That was plenty to cover our group of friends (those who care about their email service, at least) with room to spare, so I've got 4 left.

If you want one, tell me where you want me to send it.
