DoitleYou firefox and other browser users are losing touch with reality I think... If I'm opening a buissness or making a cool website am I going to do which of the following?

A. Make it display properly in IE which 95% of the internet uses?
B. Make it display properly in like 50 different tiny browsers which total make up 5% of the internet users?

I think I would go with A. If you go with B. Well, You've lost touch with reality as I said.

why should my intelagent customers suffer with the website not looking properly just because of the stupid customers?
