msgtpainj_ball430Let me put this very simply: YOU DON'T GO TO HELL JUST BY SINNING. I'm not going to Hell and I sin all the time. Just as every other Christian on this planet. The only way you go to Hell is if you refuse to believe in the Bible and believe that God sent his only son to die on the cross for man's sins. Until you accept that and sincerely believe it, you ARE going to Hell. Other than that, if you do believe, you're guaranteed a spot in Heaven. No amount of good works can get you into Heaven. The Bible clearly states that. Also, it clearly states that you cannot get to Heaven without Christ in your life.

Sure, if you're a born-again Christian... But I'd be willing to bet that all the non Christians, athiests, agnostics, etc, will disagree with you. Does that still make it simple?

The Bible also clearly states that faith without works is dead, so how does that all fit in?

And if you're Catholic, hell, you don't even need to believe in Jesus.. when you sin, just buy an indulgence from that overflowing spiritual treasury and yer Good ta Go!
Yes, it still is that simple. Any form of Christianity believes in the Bible, and if they disagree with the gospel of John then they're fucking idiots. 'Nuff said.
