Prior to some, yes... yet you say that I was lying by saying that they didn't exist. "Some people knew" does not equate to me lying about something.

I still don't recall the name "hypocrits" being banned from any game. And as I said, I don't simply take else's word for it. More than one person has to agree that the person is cheating (NOT just many people commenting how how they don't believe the shots the person has taken). Then I investigate for myself. If I can't find anything out, then I let it go as there is NO PROOF that the person was cheating. Being the moderator of a server I have seen (and have been subject to) people accusing others and myself of impossible shots. "Impossible" shots do have other factors to them other than simply cheating. If I banned everyone who was being accused of cheating, there would be no one left to play in the server. Quite often, the person is simply accusing the other, lie by saying that a test was done (yes, I've seen this happen in the server), simply to get the person kicked. More than likely, if this is true, I joined the server because there were some complaints, and could not substantiate them.

"Chosen mod was garbage", huh? I may be starting to remember who you are... but I stand behind my claim that I mentioned above. If it is as you say it was, that is probably the reason. You were complaint #3453416 who said the exact same thing, and I can not afford to simply believe the word of someone whom I do not know.

As for the Wendy's comment, you may wish to look that over, because you are acknowledging that two "companies" can be owned by the same people, yet not be the same thing. Sort of like n00bstories and Black Hand studios... no?
