

---

Subject: Re: HIJACK

Posted by bisen11 on Fri, 16 Sep 2005 01:46:29 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

RyuKishen wrote on Thu, 15 September 2005 21:17 What we do is we take totally pointless and annoying topics, and we make them into something entertaining until it gets locked. We gladly let people express their ideas. It's just when people post stuff that is pointless or offensive, we decide that we want to take the focus off of that topic. When we take offensive topics off-topic, we actually save them from the amount of flames that they would receive.

About my "idle threat" to ben, it wasn't about getting any hackers or anything. It was about filing a law suit against him for using copyrighted material without the consent of the owner. And that is VERY possible. Besides, he took the picture out of his signature before we had to do anything about it

You haven't answered.

Quote:

Since when does throwing a rug on the dirty floor qualify as cleaning it?

---