

---

Subject: Re: HIJACK

Posted by cheesesoda on Fri, 16 Sep 2005 02:14:02 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

They're just words? Is that so? Words hold a lot more value than just the letters that they're made up of. Words can hurt. Words express feelings, thoughts, views, etc... Words are spoken/typed for a reason. They're not just spewed out to necessariy be taken lightly. Obviously you see something wrong with threats, but... they're just words. They're not actions, so they don't mean anything. If they don't mean anything, why do you concern yourself with them? Why do you concern yourself with me, gbull, and others if all we type is just words? Obviously, it's the internet and everything typed is worth nothing, not even the bandwidth it takes for you to read them. Again, I ask you, why do you concern yourself with them then? You obviously feel that what you have to say is important if you have taken this much time to argue with us. What makes your words worth more than nopic's? Why should I pay any more attention to what you have to say than what he does? You obviously feel that your words are far more important and actually mean something whereas what nopic types has no meaning and are just words. If that's not egocentric, then I don't know what is.

By the time I'm offended by his post, I have already read it. It's kind of hard to ignore it after you read it, huh?

Funny how most people found entertainment in what we were doing. Pray tell how that is embarassing.

I'm sorry to tell you, but "alert" systems have been along a lot longer than just the terrorist one and many are no more serious than gbull's. However, since the Homeland Security's system is based on terrorism, and we're "E-Terrorists", they kind of go hand-in-hand. The emulation of the terror system means nothing other than for humor. Obviously, you're offended by it. Why? You said they're just words.