The worst imaginable thing has just happened to me at the worst possible time. To start, I am failing my math class, the one and only class I am failing. My parents have decided to have a little "talk" with me about my grade. Well, parents are just fucked up, and confusing as hell. First off, my computer is my life, sad but true. I have been spending the last 3 years teaching myself html, you all remember that, and C++, and many many other things. They think it is so cool that I have been learning C++, and doing all the cool things I do on my pc. Only to say, "We are taking your computer away for 9 weeks." WHAT THE FUCK! They know dam well that I want a career in the computer industry, I have spent most of my time these past 3 years doing nothing but teahing myself everything I could imagine. They think it is so cool, yet, they take my one god dam tool away. They "want" me to have and use my computer, and they "don't" want to take it away. Yet they do. At school, I have 4 computer classes, C++, HTML, Computer Hardware, and photoshop, and my god, they take my computer away. For 9 fucking weeks. The worst part of it all is that they are taking EVERYTHING that has to do with a computer away...my computer books, disks, everything. If you were to take all that away out of my room, it would be literally naked, with nothing in it at all. So now for the next 9 weeks I get to come home from school, do my homework, and then do absolutely nothing until I go to bed.

See you all in 9 weeks.
