When you're playing a moderator is going to look at if you're using RG first.

Not on a lot of servers I play on.

Sniper_De7 wrote on Sat, 31 December 2005 14:34If you "fail" that part of the test he'll move onto the next, which would be testing you. Next would be screenshots. Get it?

Thats step 1, not step 2.

Quote:The fact remains there is no real reason to not use RG unless you have a problem with it and you can't install. (Which, like i said, you COULD ask for help..) At least for forcerg i can be sure i can forcerg out a cheater when there isn't a mod to ban him.

So if I lag killed you and I wasn't running RG would you force me? Your jusification for "cheating" seems to be "gets a shot that looks weird" and "not running RenGuard". Thats a flawed assumption.

Quote:If you guys can find a valid reason why not to install Renguard other than it doesn't work for you or somehow slows your computer down (i doubt it, what are the chances, especially when you probably run 50 programs in the background). Then I might see a reason why you'd be right to complain about being force rg'ed.

I'm not complaining about being forcerg'ed. I play in servers that don't require it, or in servers when the hosts and admins know who I am.

And are you 100% sure RenGuard can block Bighead? The current version of RG has a reliance that means, in theory, someone with enough skills and the correct code could use Bighead and RenGuard at the same time, and RG would declare them to be clean.

I'm not going to tell you how, or attempt it because i'm not a cheat, nor do I encourage them, but Crimson knows about the possibility and it should be fixed when 1.04 comes out.

Please try and follow this logic:

Player + RenGuard = Can Cheat (harder to do I admit, but definately possible)
Player + No RenGuard = Can Cheat (easily)

Therefore:

Me + RenGuard = Could cheat
Me + No RenGuard = Could cheat

If I could cheat with it, and cheat without it, then why bother to install it at all if all it does is convice

the odd player who believes it's 100% that i'm cheat-free? (Ok, it's a gesture of good faith)
