Subject: Petition to ban TheGunRun
Posted by KIRBY098 on Fri, 09 May 2003 14:05:47 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

bigwig992KIRBY098If you have issues with spammers and rookies don't take it out on someone who actively supports you by plugging your work every chance she gets.

Be useful and get n00bstories back online, or release something that the entire community can use, not just the elite with massive computers,and 10 years of modding experience.

Your forums are dull, dead, and generally uninteresting unless you are a modder. Most of the people here, are not. Let them have thier fun, and keep your asshole to yourself. Crimson has enough problems with Lithium, Ty, and the other script kiddies.

Disagreed. This guy has released so many useful scripts, and always helps me out when I'm having a problem setting them up. Modding is what keeps me with Renegade, just trying new things, getting laughs, so of course his forums are awesome. If you started to mod, you could go there and learn OR use Ren Help (which by the way was created by Dante and friends).

You know what? I posted that in anger, reread it 1 minute later and decided that DANTE was referring to someone asking him to come here and look at this. I then realized he was going off on the idiots who are PMing him every three seconds to look at gay posts, not Crimson or the forum members who are fairly decent. I then revised my post to the confused guy.

I am not sure how, in that 1 minute, you were there and able to quote me, but I did not intend for that to stay on the boards. It isn't valid due to the fact that I had a wrong impression of what he was flaming.

Regardless, I still don't think senior members of the community going off on each other publicly is a smart idea. For being so intelligent in other areas, that was a dumbass thing to do.