Subject: Petition to ban TheGunRun
Posted by [REHT]Spirit on Fri, 09 May 2003 14:44:31 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Let's get this straight. You want mods, you have to be nice. The modding tools are not powered by massive computers, modding experiance, or any of that sort (MAYBE some modding exp). They are powered by CREATIVITY. You guys keep flaming like this, and as seen in some topics like w3d test instead of trying to take it somewhere else, the modders reading this stuff are going to take a dip in motivation. They take a dip in motivation, they aren't going to be able to make these creative ideas to get things working cause they're going to start questioning the point of doing it. See where I'm going at?

I know I probally sound incredibly stupid saying this, esspically with the creativity part. You guys have to ignore the fact that there is no source code and you will have to work togather. If you guys get happier, the begainer modders will be happier and more willing to try. If you guys help eachother out or give opinions and suggestions without the insults more people will want to follow them.

Trust me, Level Edit can do 90% of what you can do with the source code in half the time. Best part is, you dont need to buy C++ or anything to do it. You dl a free editor, and you get to work. Thus, more people can mod! You guys just have to treat them nicely.

Ok so maybe that's a bit off topic so I'll just cut it down to this:
BE HAPPY IF YOU WANT MODS OR A BETTER COMMUNITY!