Duke of Nukes you people can think whatever you want. Honestly...the only reason I come here is out of pure boredom and your ignorance keeps me entertained. I'm relaying your messages to some of my friends around the globe (Scotland, Australia, Venezuela, Pennsylvania, ect.) and they're all laughing...some of them my age...some of them are in their 30's. You have yet to prove me absolutely wrong...you still have only proven my wrong from the American viewpoint...learn to think out of your own little box...move to a third world country and learn the politics and then I'll listen to you

You actually have friends? Now that's a BIG surprise.

You were proved absolutely wrong in the first page. This entire discussion is 'Rather or not Kurds, which were born and are living in Iraq are Iraqi citizens'. You haven't even come close to proving yourself right in the slightest. Everything you tried to use to support your end of the discussion are either completely irrelevant, or misrepresented on your part. Most of the stuff you presented actually helped our side and hurt yours.

Rather or not someone is a citizen of a country has nothing to do with their religion, race, or ancestors, or rather or not some government leaders don't like you. You are a citizen of a country if you were born there, have been living there, etc.

This is NOT an American Viewpoint you ignorant little child. You fail to see or use the facts. This is basic Geography, what you should have been learning in early Middle School instead of sleeping.

Now why don't you send your little friends the ENTIRE THREAD without editing ours or your replies and see who they are laughing at.
