
Subject: Re: hope none of you are them
Posted by KIRBY-098 on Tue, 18 Jul 2006 20:27:01 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

j_ball430 wrote on Tue, 18 July 2006 14:57

Those who blindly follow faith are closed-minded. That's not something that I disagree with. I continue to mold and shift my beliefs. However, I still remain a Christian. I have yet to see anything to prove me otherwise. I don't pretend that I know absolute truth, but to me... it is truth. Whether wrong or right, until I am proved wrong, it's what I'll stick to. I will also continue to challenge my faith. I will continue to question. I don't have to practice something to be open-minded. I accept that other things could be truth, but I've settled on one thing, and I'll stick to it. Just because I'm heterosexual doesn't necessarily mean I'm closed-minded to homosexuality. I don't practice it, but I'm certainly not going to say that heterosexuality is the ONLY way to live because it obviously isn't.

If you claim the name of "christian" and discount this statement about homosexuality: "1 Corinthians 6:9

Do you not know that the wicked will not inherit the kingdom of God? Do not be deceived: Neither the sexually immoral nor idolaters nor adulterers nor male prostitutes nor homosexual offenders." ; then you are mitigating the truth in the word and doubting God as competent enough to get the written word right.

Heterosexuality is what was intended as evidenced by the very fact that the parts were made to go together to start and the paragraph above.

Homosexuality was man's foolish deviation from the perfect ways of God, just as organized religion, robes, popes and everything else not stated in the bible is.

Correct yourself to the truth, and return to what is right. Not what is popular.