Some time ago, you indeed could execute server side console commands by sending them from the client. That has been fixed though... But you can do a lot of client side things that would be cheating, and it would be much easier when there is a way to execute them when the player wants them to execute (by using the console commands)