Subject: Re: A sniff of democracy (aka ACK vote)
Posted by futura83 on Fri, 06 Oct 2006 19:07:31 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

j_ball430 wrote on Fri, 06 October 2006 20:03the17doctor wrote on Fri, 06 October 2006 14:58j_ball430 wrote on Fri, 06 October 2006 19:56the17doctor wrote on Fri, 06 October 2006 14:55j_ball430Statistics don't mean jack shit.

since this is part of a democratic vote, statistics do mean something.

statistics in this decide whether ACk stays or goes.
There you go again with the damn semantics. You have nothing to argue, give it up.

and you, evidently, have nothing to argue either; you voted that you want ACK to stay, but have not said why yet either. you have only wanted to know why people want him to go.

so go on, humour me, why do you want him to stay?
Easy enough.

RenForums has no set rules. How can someone break rules and be deserving of a ban when there are no rules to break? If I speed and get pulled over, I am probably going to get a ticket. Why? Because I broke the law. However, if I drive on a freeway in Montana, where there is no speed limit, and I go the same speed I was on a Michigan freeway, I won't be pulled over. You understand? If there's no law/rule to break, then how can you break it?

Whether or not his actions are appropriate doesn't apply here. Telling someone to "fuck off" is inappropriate, too, but you aren't fined/arrested for that.

Also, what Aircraftkiller does/has done is no different than what most of the members here (including myself) do. If he deserves to go, so does the majority of the community.

ever heard of ettiquette? (sp )

not so much laws/rules, but, if the majority of the voters think he is being a complete prick and want him to leave, then the vote will be passed and he will be perm banned.

now, correct me if i am wrong, but, in the law system, if someone is taken to court, the verdict is made by a jury of the defendants peers. now, whether he/she is guilty or not, if they say he/she is guilty, then he will get punished for it.

there is a similar thing here.