Yep, same problem here. I've posted a while back, and read many threads on this same problem.
No one has any idea wth is going on, or how to fix it.
We know it's not because of your router or AV, although these COULD cause the same problem.
Luckily, everyone here likes to spam those two ideas like they help.
Best fix: wait for the notorious "1.04" to come out, which will fix "everything".
When will this happen?
Never. So yes, we're all screwed.
