
Subject: Re: well...i can tell im not wanted here.
Posted by Blazer on Wed, 20 Dec 2006 10:41:48 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

You guys (people who post dramatic "I'm leaving" threads) are funny. You all say the same things, using words like "dying game", and "I'm now playing <new game here> because it's newer".

Sure they are newer, and they can even be fun for awhile. I myself play BF2142, Call of Duty2, CS:S, BF2, and POE (a BF2 mod). They are all "newer", "updated", and have graphics that kick the shit out of Renegade. But I still play Renegade - because even with other games VOIP, squads, dozens of radio commands, etc, they don't come close to the hectic teamwork that you get in Renegade.

Most people who post these "I'm leaving" threads to play some new game, are back within a few months.

As for this being a "dying game", I always laugh at that, because people have been saying that for literally years. Sure this game isn't as big as most of the others, but its definitely not dying. In fact with the release of the Next Decade, we have had an influx of new players. If you check online you can see that there are still many servers and players for Quake1, which is old as dust, and people are still having a great time playing it...I wonder if they still have folks who even bother saying "this game is dying".

Anyhow, do what you will. If you are the type of person who must play every new game out there, then go ahead, Renegade will be here waiting for you when you get bored.
