Personally, I think most black people are fucking idiots. They live in poverty and they don't want to better themselves. For that reason, they can go fuck themselves. They don't deserve a job any more than I do, and if they're as qualified as me, they don't deserve it any less. Especially not because of their skin color. The discrimination that they faced, they no longer face. I can understand Affirmative Action for those who were affected by racism back in the '60s, but generations have passed, and these fuckwits don't deserve anything because of discrimination that doesn't happen as widescale as it used to. They need to get over the idea that the white man is out to get them, and if they actually tried to better themselves, the white man may actually hire their ignorant asses.
