I think it's odd that Arabs own party stores, but I'm not really bothered by it.

In America, from what I've seen, it's only really blacks that have a problem with working. Everybody else wants to work and live happily... well, most do.

Over here on the west coast we're kind of racially blind apparently. I've honestly never noticed a difference between the work ethic of a particular race.

Well, other than the fact that illegal Mexican immigrants are willing to work much harder than any Americans for less money.

You must be blind then. They had to build a mountain of evidence to fire this guy. If he'd had been white pulling the crap he did he would have been gone a whole lot sooner. If you're the boss of a lazy minority you better have your ducks all in a row before firing or find yourself in court.

Years ago I worked for this one company who had a black guy working there. He never showed up on time, never did much at work and missed several days during work. No biggie lots of people are lazy like that of all races. Difference with him and everyone knew it because he would say it in front of everyone, you can't fire me because I'm black and I'd sue your ass. They finally did but they had to gather a lot of proof before hand.

Just curious are you a minority? If so could be why you don't see it? Or maybe your liberal lol could be the other reason.
