"I hope someone can tell me if there are going to be any more updates, because it's a pain in the ass to keep installing them."

Are you on a 300 baud modem link or something? The updates to Renguard itself are less than half a megabyte. That's less than the combined HTML of this page you are viewing. As far as "pain to install", it downloads itself, and installs itself, so the only pain is having it restart which takes .5 seconds.

Updates that we roll out are absolutely required to upgrade the client or fix bugs. We certainly do not like having to do multiple updates, but sometimes fixing one thing breaks something else that wasn't revealed in testing.
