Nope, no crash/error log. It acts as if it IS loaded, hence the process in the Task Manager, it is just the program never actually appears.

I only notice it stopped working today. It may have stopped earlier though. The last time I had it open was I think on either Thursday or Friday.

I tried opening a save file for it, it brings up "select program from list" so I find Gmax, and tell it to open, but the same thing happens. The program doesn't come up, but it does in the process list.

During the days I haven't had it open, I haven't been home, and haven't used the computer. When I was back, I installed Photoshop, and this was yesterday afternoon. I also installed/uninstalled a few GIF animating programs. I think 4 in total. (3 didn't work, last 1 did)

Do you suppose one of the 5 things I installed/uninstalled has anything to do with this?
