I am fairly certain that the thought of shooting him would go through my mind a good few times, which could lead into something that I would later regret. If I didn't have the gun in the first place then the thought wouldn't have had been there.

Wait, so it's the gun's fault that you can't deal with your anger? Yes, let's blame the gun for that! This goes right back to my automobile argument. You could murder your friend with your car. By that argument, automobiles should be illegal.

It's called PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY. Just because you CAN do something doesn't mean that you should. Just because I have a tongue doesn't mean I should go around licking people. Just because I have hair doesn't mean I should rip it out in a fit of rage. Let's shave everybody's heads and cut off their tongues!

Yes, a gun would make it EASIER to kill your best friend, but if you want to kill him, you're going to do it regardless of what you have to use. Whether it be a car, bat, knife, your fists, or the HORRIBLE gun.
