Granted just being in posession of something isn't really a big deal...but I knew this guy. He would get high and do crazy shit, like set his dog on fire, and blame it on "because I was so high man". Once he got into my car, pushed my cigarette lighter in, then when it popped out, he took it and shoved it onto the end of my turn signal lever, melting it all over the place. Why did he do that? "Sorry dude I was high". And while he was driving on the road high (as he often did), he would do crazy shit like swerve towards people and stuff to scare them. I'm quite sure that all the times he was busted for posession on the road, he was also high so I sure dont feel sorry for him.

Note: I realize that not all people are nutballs like this, and they do it "recreationally", but to be honest I don't agree with smoking at all. Smoking killed my mother so I am biased, and always will be. For good reason I think though, as most smokers themselves agree its a dirty unhealthy habit that they would quit in an instant if they "could".
