A phone is meant to call people, a game system is meant to play games, both xbox360 and ps3 have video playback, music playback, and picture slideshow (does xbox have this, i forget). Both have similar features that many people dont use or need, another example is the wireless remotes, I sit 3 feet away from my little lcd tv, I use my ps3 like a gaming PC, standing up with a lcd by it. Why do i need wireless remotes when I'm sitting 3 feet away from my TV.

Really if you look at it, theres tons of crap we dont need to use just to play games. But really can you say the ps3/wii/360 suck when all 3 systems have similar games and some only on each system? It really depends on what type of games you like, if your into online gaming, a ps3/360 will do you, but if your more into adventure and single player games then go for wii, it's multiplayer is good, but not as good as the ps3's/360's.
