Do like the above. If those comments were sent to you via e-mail or some such means, make sure you keep copies.

If they were just said to you, see if anyone else heard them say it, and get a written and signed statement from them, of everything they said and everything you said back, date, time, etc. Or keep a little audio recording device in your pocket and turn it on shortly before going to the class, or whenever it is that the teacher normally says those things to you, so that you can get some proof of what was said.

Then gather all evidence, witnesses, etc. and go to the Principal or Vice Principal about it.
