One thing I want to insert 2 cents on:

I don't think Hitler was "Evil." WAIT, LET ME FINISH! I didn't say that I don't think what he did was a horrible, horrible thing, I just think that the word "Evil" and Hitler are just in two completely different leagues. Or like using a football to play baseball.

I see Hitler as more of a Psychologically Imbalanced or Disturbed, rather than "Evil."

My reasons for saying that is... well, I don't really know.. it just stood out to me and I thought I'd say something about it.

Maybe it is because Hitler believed he was doing the right thing. An Evil person would consciously be doing the wrong thing.

That's the way I see it. If Hitler was truly insane or mentally unstable, he would consider himself as having done the right thing in killing masses of people, which would be appalling to a person in a normal mental state.
