Im fed up of clicking on the little down arrow and finding millions of URL's that I have visited before there.
   It is really annoying. Just one of those things I wanna change and make it permanent, like so no one else can change it and it don't record the URL's again.

Sure, it can be usefull if you want to go to a page and you can't be arsed to type the URL. But, I do (As I like typing).

   I know that Internet explorer saves all the URL's in some system folder somewhere, so I am hoping if one of you guys can tell me how I can restrict, change/edit this file or the settings and put a password on it or something. So no idiot can change the settings.

 My dad does it all the time and it pses me off. Way to easy to go to Options Internet Settings then change all the stuff I setup so it records everything. Wasting space

Thanks,
