Subject: Re: 45% of Americans believe that humans did not evolve
Posted by SSADMVR on Thu, 12 Jun 2008 12:43:54 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Cabal8616 wrote on Thu, 12 June 2008 06:02SSADMVR wrote on Thu, 12 June 2008 05:57There's a word in my language, which I don't know the English equivelant of, that states you do not believe in any form of God, church, etc. It would fit better to the situation.

Oh, and a rational look at the possible definitions of rationality would give you the right definition. lol
What's "reasonable" differs from person to person. What you may think is "rational" could be completely insane to another person. Same goes for what you think is insane, could very well be rational to another person.

But, if you want to think of it that way, look at the rational definitions of Religion then...
Well that's not completely true. Some people find it rational to believe in something supernatural like ghosts. I think everyone here knows that's not a rational way of thinking.

On the other hand I agree when you look at the purely linguistic meaning the word has. "Ratio" means something like common sense. However, due to different education and culture, common sense coming from one person is usually different then that coming from another person.