

---

Subject: Re: RULES?

Posted by reborn on Fri, 28 Aug 2009 10:10:01 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I can personally recomend these guys.

Some of there case histories:

Quote:

Case Histories

Dermott Kwesi Johnson, a 34 year old man convicted of dealing crack cocaine was aggrieved that his local newspaper called him 'drug dealing scum'. He was also upset that a witness who he shot before the trial said his 'life was ruined by Dermott'. We took the case to the European Court of Human Rights and won an important historic victory. Dermott was awarded £230,000 damages and is now midway through a further case which may see him sue a former customer who alleges that crack cocaine sold by Dermott was 'harmful'.

Uday Hussein, the son of Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein contacted us after reading comments in the Liverpool Times which alleged he was 'not a nice man'. After legal moves we settled out of Court for a sum of £367,000 and a front page apology. Uday was delighted and issued a statement which spoke of his solicitors as being 'the best that my people's money can buy'. We are proud to have gained this important victory for Human Rights.

Billy Davies, a 53 yr old Kirkby man wrote to his local papers advice column alleging that his marriage was 'strained'. His wife contacted us and we duly issued orders to recover damages, costs and facilitate an apology. We successfully sued Mr Davies and won damages of £145,000. Mr Davies lost his home, his car and is now homeless. A further legal move to win the shirt off his back is being drawn up.

Jimmy Jenkins , aged 12 was called a 'bastard' by a Mr Kevin Curtin whose window he admittedly smashed with a brick. This slanderous comment eventually led to the child then returning with a petrol bomb and then later being accused of causing the deaths by arson of 4 people including Kevin Curtin and his 3 children. We argued that the original slanderous comments by Mr Curtin who called Jimmy a 'bastard' were the sole cause of the subsequent arson and alleged murder. We successfully sued the widow of Kevin Curtin for damages totaling £387,000 and also took out a restraining order preventing the funeral taking place as the public display of grief may have been interpreted as 'an aggressive public display of feelings' to Jimmy Jenkins.

Danny's Pet store in Kirkby Town Centre was one of our more publicised cases. It began when a 31 yr old woman Mrs Redmond Davies was initially amused by a parrot which had become able to speak a few sentences. Unfortunately for the shop owner, one of the strings of words uttered by the bird was 'hello fatty bum bum' This libelous statement caused intense distress to Mrs Davies and proceedings were issued as soon as we were able to determine that the Pet shop Owner was responsible. We gained damages of £277,000. The parrot was destroyed.