Subject: Re: Chrome now has extensions
Posted by Lone0001 on Sat, 06 Feb 2010 18:01:56 GMT

BlueThen wrote on Sat, 06 February 2010 10:00Lone0001 wrote on Sat, 06 February 2010 01:05Yes but that is nothing like NoScript

Also, Permit Cookies or GTFO (another good one I forgot to mention)
Honestly, the only reason you use those things is because you don't feel safe using FireFox. Chrome already has loads of security integrated, and updated as often as needed. Stuff like NoScript is unnecessary when you're already surfing in a safe browser

No... it's because I like to be safe while browsing and so I can allow the sites I want.

No browser is completely secure, you can't say any browser is.

PS. Chrome is also not exactly compatible with everything.