
Subject: is this guy full of bullshit or what lol
Posted by Starbuzz on Sat, 04 Sep 2010 16:31:10 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I am selling my complete Halo game on eBay and got this question from a "buyer"

lol wtf "GIVE ME DA KEY LOLOLOLLL"

So I replied back:

and got more bullshit:

lol?

My question is what is he on? Install on custom OS WTF is he talking about? For all I know he already has "downloaded" the game files and needs a valid CD key to play online! I wonder how many unknowledgeable people that sell video games on eBay he has fooled with this lame tactic.

File Attachments

1) 1.png, downloaded 688 times

Dear starbuzz05,

Hello mate, I'm just checking to see if this game will run on my PC. Would you mind messaging me the product key? It should be a list of numbers/letters found inside. I'd just like to see if my PC is compatible before I bid.

Cheers!

-

2) 2.png, downloaded 673 times

Dear ,

hi there! I appreciate your interest. Unfortunately, I am unable to send the product key to you as it is also part of the game package in this auction. Since Halo is still being played online, this valid product key has to only be used by the person who won the auction. Hope this answers your question, regards!

- starbuzz05

3) 3.png, downloaded 689 times

Dear starbuzz05,

Ah I understand, that makes sense. Just letting you know I don't intend to actually use the key as I don't have the game yet! I just need it to check it will install on my custom operating system! I am very interested in this item and will pay up to $20 if it can run on my OS. Thanks for the reply

- 