Xtrm2Matt..so what if you dont install this? 'RenGuard' won't effect the person.

The client-side of the application is a small executable that maintains a low-bandwidth connection to a master server which validates any mods or add-ons you want to use with Renegade. The RenGuard client scans all add-ons in your Data directory and reports back a unique number that identifies the file you're using. This is reported to the master server and your attempt to connect to the Renegade server is either accepted or rejected.

Unless i read it wrong and theres a server-side application that checks?

Well, I wouldn't have had to specify client-side if there wasn't a server side as well, plus I mentioned a master server.
