Crimson wrote on Sat, 12 November 2011 06:17 Whether or not you like Jarhead or not (which is funny considering you don't know the first thing about him) is not a basis to justify flooding my server. Even if he repeatedly joined with "n00bstories is the best", I would have done the same thing. What kind of low-life loser spends a half hour joining a server and getting kicked over and over until I have to get woken up to IP ban him to make it stop?

Sorry, but that behavior is completely intolerable. The private messages he's sent to Jarhead, insulting his military service in a very brutal way, are even worse than the server flooding.

I'm DONE with that pathetic loser.

While I see how that justifies banning him from NS, does that also justify banning him from Renegade forums?

I mean, of course it's your server, but I also think that while he annoyed you, he might be useful to other people in the Renegade community.

I feel that you should have different "hats" so to say, to not mingle RF related bits and NS related bits. I know this is not easy, certainly not because you run them on the same (set of) server(s), but it would show a certain... How do I put it... level of professionalism and fairness I guess.

Renegadeforums isn't the place to fight out community issues imho, whether you're admin or just some random low-life.
