Azazel is correct in his assessment of jello moderators. They're rarely ingame(even under smurf nicks). They've been that way for years now. Most of the little servers have to have moderators ingame to keep the playercount just high enough for the regulars to take notice and join. Heh go figure, that goes right back to the high hostnick. Without it the regulars wouldn't take as much notice.

So how's your server working out for you Xpert? Do you really think not having a higher hostnick wouldn't help yours out too? Yours sit empty 3/4th of the time, just like the rest do.
