FerhagoThats because school is seriously fucked up.

P.S. When you applied at cisco, Domino's just had to look good on your resume. Or did you leave it out Actually, I don't leave it out. I don't hide the fact that I'm only starting to persue web development as a career. Domino's, if nothing else, shows longevity at my jobs. My previous job was 6 months as the Director of Web Development for a chain of resorts, and between that and the other sites I've worked on, I got in.
