

---

Subject: Question: Dialup Internet Users

Posted by General Havoc on Tue, 11 Mar 2003 22:57:13 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I had BTopenworld Anytime but got kicked off for over use so i went to BTopenworld ADSL.

Trust me if you live in the UK Dial up internet services are not worth using. There is an auto cutoff after 2 hours and you can't send a "heartbeat" to keep yourself connected it happened no matter month, which to us is nothing. Also you can't use the phone at the same time meaning the cost of

can be used whilst online with no affect, and a data rate of 512K. Hardly seems worth the cost for dialup, i can never go back to it now.

512K: 200 Megabytes / Hour average (max 230.4 MB/hour @ 64k/s)

56K : 15 megabytes / Hour average (max 25.2MB/Hour @ 7k/s)

---