This is what one of my (reallife) friends told me what was going on down in South Carolina. Screenname editted...

Quote:tennis2005 (7:47:24 PM): yeh. at my sister's the school yesterday 100 ppl were out with the flu and 150 went home early tennis2005 (7:47:29 PM): they only have about 400 ppl

pastorofpizzahvn (7:47:37 PM): wow

pastorofpizzahvn (7:47:45 PM): thats you call a plague tennis2005 (7:47:56 PM): yeh, and the hospitals and doctor offices are over flooding with people.

Now I will remind you were she lives, the population is only about 2,500.

Anywho, same thing has been going on at my school also and family. My father, mother, sister, and my brother (whose in DC) have gotten it, this has all been going on now for about six weeks. Strangly enough I have not gotten the flu. I am usually the first at my school/family to get sick...but not this time. So I am hoping Im immune to it.
