I know several people that said they have gone to heaven after going through a new death experience...

My mom for one- she went through a windshield and said she could see the whole scene and she felt herself levitate to a garden where her grandfather(dead) was. Her grandfather spoke the words "What are you doing here, it's not your time," and she aptly left to her body and opened her eyes.

It's weird...there's just some things in life that are too coincidental to not have a miracle behind them...
