I had a similar problem with a gaobot variant. Norton would go into crazy mode, but couldn't repair the file "soundman.exe". So I would delete it, only to have it respawn again at a random interval later on.

What I assumed was that if it was an outsider trying use my computer, I could simply block him out by disabling my DMZ. If you have a router, check and see if your DMZ is open -- and if it is, close it. That solved my problem.
