I need some advice for hosting a web site. I've seen all these web hosts offering their services for "so-much a month/year", but some of them have crap deals, and you usually pay more for what you get.

I just need some advice as to what to look for. All I really need is a web site with about 100-200 MB web space, FTP access, CGI Script enabled and possible more.

Would it be better for me to just rent my own server, all would that be too expensive? I really don't know much about this stuff, I know there are people here very knowledgeable of this subject.
