DarkDemin and I had an idea this afternoon about making a movie just like cyberpunk's, but instead of supporting cheats, we're supporting RenGuard. This short, low quality, and somewhat queer movie is meant to show you some of the destructive effects of cheating and cheaters themselves. The movie depicts DarkDemin and xptek using various cheats to gain an unfair advantage of what would be a normal game if the rest of us were unaware. We played the game like normal, attempting base kill and attacking each other. The results of our efforts is the movie that DarkDemin put together with his footage that he captured from using Fraps. Enjoy and download RenGuard.

I know that, but the main focus of the game isn't the names of the players, it's the overall ease of killing tanks, people, repairing tanks, beacons, and units in one shot. If the servers don't run RenGuard then that leaves your servers accessible for the cheater. Granted he would have been kicked long before we stopped filming, but when? 1 kill? 2? 5? 10? 20?

While I have no problems with this video itself, I would like to say two things:

1. Please dont make public service announcements "from n00bstories" without permission. As far as I know Crimson did not authorize you to speak for n00bstories. That being said I recognize you didn't mean any harm, but if this video was something illegal or bad, it would have been done in the name of n00bstories, and Im sure Crimmy wouldn't appreciate that.

2. These hacks are NOT the main reason to download RenGuard. People using these types of cheats are easily spotted by moderators and banned. The truly evil hacks are the subtle ones that just give the cheaters enough advantage to always win, but otherwise go unnoticed. I can assure you there are many more people cheating in renegade than you think, and they are not using anything like what is shown in this video.

I don't think people realise how worse off a few GX guys could have made the game back in october 03'. On their part they were foolish to release an objects.ddb that allows for huge amounts of points when killing shit in 1 shot..

but had they been smart, and gave you little to no points for it, the ban lists sure as hell wouldn't be as big, and every game could be a cheater's game. It would've been the ultimate tool..join a populated game, and wipe the field with a rifle soldier while remaining undetected. it's a good job renguard came out before someone decided to release such a modification.

In my opinion I don't see why every server doesn't run, Renguard. After reading Blazer's post... I wouldn't just trust a moderator's opinion on who's cheating and who isn't. Sure, there are great moderator's out there, but some of those things mentioned above would just be to hard to notice for anyone.

Not running Renguard because it makes your server empty is understanable, but if more servers took part in running Renguard it would benefit the community as a whole. Then we would all know for a fact that virtually every game is cheat free. Besides, personally I ask myself the question, "Why wouldn't someone want to download Renguard?".. I can only come up with one answer.

If anyone did download the applet, which appears to be full of crap after doing a Google search for "35mb.com applet", here are removal instructions which I copied from some other site:

Quote:HOW TO DELETE THE 35MB.COM APPLET:

Windows XP/ME/2000/98/95

1. Open up My Computer, and browse into the C Drive
2. Proceed to your Windows directory
3. Open up the folder, "Download Program Files"
4. Find the download_35mb_com.applet... right click and select "remove"
5. Restart your computer
6. Follow steps 1 to 2, and open your "system32" folder, check for the following dll's

* ms35mb.dll
* applet35mb.dll

If they are present, delete...

The mirror works fine
