well renegade hit the fan, doesnt seem like its going anywhere anymore. Im switching to HL2. Hell they may have servers even....

All this time with renegade is hard to let go. Remember the first time you got buildings to show up in leveledit? Geeze. Or the first item you correctly boned, and it actually works ingame.

consoles like mega-drives, n64s, etc, trade and sell games, as well as sell new releases.

Jesus Christ you guys are all flipping out and OMG VALVES WAREZ VERSION U RE TEH SCRWED!!!! You don't have to download a warez version. I know a large group of people who all chipped in a little bit to purchase a single instance of HL2. They all logged on and downloaded HL2. Steam doesn't care how many people play the Single player. If 500,000 people coordinated and all wanted to play hl2. They could buy gold, They would have to pay a 180th of a cent. To ALL play. Now if anyone wants to play the Multiplayer they can't do that, Which I would assume Oblivion does seeing as he wants to mod it. I just wanted to point out that while Valve thinks they're so smart, and you all praise them, they left a huge ass whole... lol Too bad that won't do shit, since you have to log into Steam to run the game.

Also, Doitle, what you said about many people sharing has a flaw. You can share it, but you can't play it more than once at a time with one account. I don't get why people think you can avoid logging onto Steam or that Single Player does not require Steam. You DO have to log in for both Multiplayer and Single Player... Get it right damnit.

people all just log in and play HL2 with impunity. That's the big flaw of steam's I'm talking about. Icedog go test it, give your username and password to a friend and have them log in, then you log in. Surprise surprise, nothing happens. Just don't both play CS:S at the same time.

Renegade is a one of a kind game, I admit it, but once CnC Commando comes out, I sadly say, that I may leave Renegade to weekends only.

I will not ever abandon it, I have tried. The Renegade community is like no other, and only a mod that ports Renegade could make me waver in my loyalty. I shall see how Commando is like, never really liked RenAlert or Reborn. Maybe I will try out the RenEvo mod for HL2 that makes the Dead Six return, but I will never know.

Hands down, Renegade is a game that no other can top, the perfect mix of strategy and such. Maybe one day a small company like Westwood all on its own will buy the Command and Conquer licence, restore it to it's glory, and make a Renegade 2. I swear, they would make MILLIONS off of that.

If CnC Commando for the Source engine can pull off a clone of Renegade, I will play the original less. Commando is the only candidate I see for me to make a clan in, and even so, Commando will NEVER be anything as good as Renegade. The Renegade engine was specifically designed for this perfect mix of strategy, and let's all face it, if a company took the idea and made a game like it, MANY Renegade fans would pack up and move.

Renegade is as good as it is because of the perfect mix of strategy and shooting. Never, even with all the games I own, have I seen a game where people really do work as a team. People rush, make strategies, and use perfected combinations of people to achieve a victory. Only one game that was cancelled could ever have taken on the role of this perfect blend of strategy, teamwork, and action. It's name was Command and Conquer Renegade 2. EA got that shut down.

For all of you that were just action, gung-ho jocks, you'll never see into the delicate, wonderful gaming CnC Renegade offered. You will never understand how much Renegade really does make action games look good. All you can see are graphics, better engines, and more people. You never saw into how really advanced the W3D engine was, even for now, it still is fairly recent.

It's too bad that the community of Renegade players slowly dwindles, but for people that REALLY cared about the game, they won't stop until they are the few.

I was told by a clan member to let go of Renegade and join them in CS: Source. I said: "I'd rather play CnC Renegade, you will never understand why." They never did. So I just continued on, because CnC Renegade is a genre of it's own. It's a FPS Strategy game.

I will always be looking for the game, or mod, that is perfect just like Renegade. But until then I will stay here, on WOL and in these forums, and stay until the most dedicated of the dedicated to this game quit, also known as Black Hand Studios.

That's all I have to say.

zunnieYou'll be back. There is no game like Renegade available. Renegade is more like a 'genre' by itself. Once this genre gets a hold of you once, you will keep coming back for it.

[zunnie]

I must have a lot of will power, because I've had no desire to even attempt Renegade again. I haven't played it for like a month without CoD and HL2 to distract me.

oblivion165i got a geforce4 and a gig stick of ram, so its not the hardware. its just the half-rendering thing. Its a good game, it was to short for me though. Yet most games have a limited story line. Overall it deserved my money, so i ordered a clean copy of amazon.

From a distance:

Up Close:

Hell it might even be fixable, i havent looked at the options yet. It sucks because my brother and i will race swamp buggies and im hauling ass, then all of the sudden there is a pile of barrels infront of me.

though in the right mood it makes it more fun.

Uh, that has NOTHING to do with Half-Life 2. Everything renders very far for me, and the game looks hella better than that. Turn up your settings and maybe you won't feel like you wasted your money.

(I'm joking)

Yes, we're staying with Renegade until we release a half decent/decent mod.

oblivion165SuperFlyingEngiA GeForce 4 is not a great video card any more....

The game looks fine, and nothing pops up in front of me with my 9800 Pro and 512 Mb of RAM.

its still decent, and a gig stick....there isnt any commercial or domestic program my comp cant handle. I do mean Unix and etc aswell.

Except for Half-Life 2, apparently. After all, GeForce 4s don't have hardware support for DirectX 9.0, so that's probably where the problem's coming from.

I have a Geforce FX that's set on DirectX 8.1, Half-Life 2 looks the best and runs like a champ. DirectX 9.0 isn't that much different, in my opinion.

Actually, there's quit alot of difference. I don't remember where... but I saw a screenshot that tested every DirectX. Some where transparency and fires looked like crap... another where everything looks fine (DirectX 9.0c).

Has nothing to do with Half-Life 2's engine.

If Half-Life2 is messing up, its not the game engine. I have had the same problem. Do an anti virus scan on te disc or your hard drive it is already installed. I found the Trojan Horse on mine. If my estimate is correct, then you will have some nasy little virus in your hard drive as well. Norton Anti-Virus, if you have it, then it should contain the virus rather quickly. I don't trust any other virus protector.

Geforce 4 is inaccurate. There are many kinds of Geforce 4's out there.

Geforce 4 MX 400

Geforce 4 MX 420

Geforce 4 MX 440 64mb

Geforce 4 MX 440 128mb

Geforce 4 Ti 4200

Geforce 4 Ti 4400

Geforce 4 Ti 4600

Geforce 4 Ti 4800

Anything else I'm missing?

So yeah, they all are way different from each other.

Well, no fucking duh Half-Life 2 is going to do that shit, you have a $30 card that's been out-dated for years. Don't expect a highly advanced game engine to run the best and look the best on a very out-dated card.

if you look at the radions they are about the same:

except of course the beasts. and those are the low end ones anyway.

i agree, i bought the card way back when galaxies came out. but as for the requirements for hl2 im well set:

--Required

Windows 98/ME/2000/XP

1.2 Ghz processor

256 MB of RAM

DirectX 7 compatible graphics card

--Recommended

Windows 98/ME/2000/XP

2.4 Ghz processor

512 MB of RAM

DirectX 9 enabled graphics card

Internet Access

may not be the best, but will handle it easily.

Oblivion, stop being so damn oblivious to the fact that JUST BECAUSE YOU CAN RUN IT DOESN'T MEAN IT WILL RUN PERFECTLY. Ever wonder why the recommended settings are different from the minimum requirements? Maybe because the Recommended means it will play to the best of its capabilities, and minimum requirements just means that it can play it without any MAJOR problems.
