Or, if you don't want to wait, use the Isnoop Gmail service. It's a service where people can add invites to and get them from: <http://isnoop.net/gmailomatic.php>

Currently there are over 100.000 invites available, because everybody got 50 of them recently. I got 50 invites two times so far, and sent them all there.

EDIT: I got another 50, that's 50 invites three days in a row. I added them all to the Isnoop service.

Looks like everyone's gmail account got about 50 more invites. Possibly a sign that its going to come out of beta?

Maybe, but more likely they are testing their servers.

Ya my invites just got bumped to 50 aswell.

My guess is they really want more users on the system to stress test it.
