I just can't wait until the government sues them and breaks them up into 10 different smaller companies. Happened to AT&T, and I know some time in the near future it's going to happen to EA. It shall be hilarious.

You could make a mod for HL 2 black and white.

Eh too futuristic. Ren1918 would be a great B/W game.

I meant you could make a mod, and turn it into black and white, there is a command for that.

Most monitors have a setting for black & white. You don't need to alter games to make things appear in greyscale, you know.

The Battlefield 1918 Mod for BF:1942 looks pretty cool in black & white, by the way. The Forgotten Hope mod does, as well. As does any history-themed game.

What if EA made a game using the source engine and realisted it as a product.

Did they have to ruin a classic movie?

I really dislike EA texture for some reason. Perhaps it's because they haven't changed one bit in the last 5 years.

Other than that I think it looks like a decent game..

I made that mistake too because I wanted to check if the age 16 was allowed, but I guess not, lol. The good thing is that I use Firefox, meaning I can open Internet Explorer and go to that site again with a different age.

So why would you use IE when you could have just deleted that site's cookie?

You have no idea how pissed I'd be. I'd use all my money to buy an island and take the best scientists I could find with me. In there, I'd build a secret underground research facility where we'd invent out-of-this-world weapons. At ground level on the island, I'd pay people build a city and pay more people to start a community there. A community that would be a Utopia.

As the years pass and the research finishes, I'd use those newly aquired weapons to overthrow the evil government. From there, I'll move to taking over the rest of the world, and succeed.

That's just my two cents.
