I found out that the school computers can boot from a CD-ROM because they suck at security, so can anyone tell me a copy of Linux Live CD (a certain distrubution) that would allow quick access to the Interweb?

If you wan't to bypass the filters put Firefox on a cd and you can use that. The blocking software doesn't work on Firefox.

My school uses Bess as well.
I have Ubuntu live CD's and they work pretty well, at one time they would ship them to you free but I don't know if they still do.  Almost every Linux distro has a live-cd you can download.
