Deer Park isn't really a new browser, it's just the development codename for Firefox 1.1

Just got the second alpha yesterday. It's pretty neat, and even better for 56k users (going back or forward to pages is instant), not saying I am a 56k user.

I'm currently using Deer Park Alpha. That's the only reason I got it. Firefox didn't really interest me. I like IE. I still like IE. As of now I just kinda flutter between them both. I don't really notice much of a difference between IE and this other than this doesn't display the centered YTMND's correctly. The only reason I decided to try it was the name lol... I couldn't resist a browser named Deer Park.

I have just tested IE, Firefox, and this new one.

Firfox is way faster than IE.
Deer Park is slightly faster than Firefox, enough to notice atleast.

Try testing it on Glydes website, he has tons of images on it and takes a bit to load. But make sure you clear all your cookies and temp pages before testing each browser to give each one the same test.

Love the website btw glyde...

His website isn't a good one to test since it's being hosted on his own internet connection.
