I WILL MAKE MY OWN!

I offically start project fallout here!

I just need a little help.

How do you make a emitter than is big gets small than gets bigger at the top?

It's a large set of particles, not a mesh.

Emitters are particles.

Its only a nuke emitter.

No more like a whole assembly of emitters which gives you 5 fps for about 10 seconds everytime it goes off.

It's only a model!

[picture that was removed :'(]

What kind of computer are you running, something before the FX era? No wonder you have troubles with framerate.

I don't recall my FPS ever going down that much when the nuke in Renalert goes off. Atleast not that low. It berely goes down at all for me.

It must be even before that. I'm running a pre-FX card and don't get much of a framerate drop at all.

The FX series fail at shaders.... worst performance ever.
