Did you try installing in a different directory? I know it's a long shot but maybe that would do it.

That looks like a corrupt memory error. Have you made any hardware changes? I would try pulling the power supply from the wall, wait 5 seconds press the start button to discharge the system. Open the case and pull both memory modules and clean the fans and cards with dust off. Replace one module and test. If it fails again swap the modules and retest. If that fails then try using a single module in a different slot, continue till you go crazy.

ehm, i wouldnt start dragging memory modules in and out of their slots without completely 100% ruling out software problems first, your more likely to make the problem worse than to fix it if you don't take good care of your memory sticks

If there was a problem with the hardware I would expect there to be other random crashing etc, not just for one particular application...

Oh yeah, don't use pliers or Vise-Grip's to pull out the modules.

i switched pc's and found out (re)installing renegade was a problem...
i tried the tutorial on the renguard forums but they are a bit out dated.

ill explain the u have to take if u want to (re)install renegade.

First thing u have to do is install renegade like u normaly would, use your own serial and stuff.
Then u need to download the latest renegade patch (1.037) here.
Start renegade up and goto the serverlistings, then quit renegade.
download core patch 1 here.

After u installed cp1 u need to start renegade and log on to wol(xwis) just goto the serverlistings screen and then exit renegade again.

[Note for McAfee users: u have to add "game.exe" from the renegade dir to your "allowes programes list"]

Then download renguard from the offical renguard website found here

Install renguard and start it, it will ask u f u want to install the latest corepatches, say 'yes' and just let it do it's thing.

after its all done and renguard doesnt come whying about stuff and u wanna play renegade just start any shortcut made by u or the renegade insstallation or start "game.exe". If u wanna play renegade with out renguard start "game2.exe"

[Note for McAfee users: u have to add "game.exe" again (so remove it from the list and re-add it) and "Game2.exe" from the renegade dir to your "allowes programes list"]

this only works for the 'normal'/'original' renegade, so not for The First Decade

I hate to be a pain... but it seems to be doing the same thing still...
It probably won't work.. but what if i got someone else's game2.exe? Any chance of that helping?

Here's a link to the screenshot:

I used to get this problem periodically, but not persistently.

Now I am using Renegade on The First Decade for the first time, and will attempt to install Renguard go see if it works. Hopefully I will not get the same error...
