1.repair in the field when control of the field is not to the advantage of n00bs team

it is funny sometimes, as i have stolen vehicles doing it.

but there have been other times where someone on my team gets out of a stank to repair mid-field, then gets sniped to hell, which leaves me as an SBH to jump in the stank and return it to base.

how often do you people see other people doing it?

2. a one-man apc rush

people buy apcs, jump in them, and ride to the enemies base on their own.

they get to the enemies base and either:

- have their apc destroyed leaving a shell for the enemy to repair
- sucessfully get to the building but have their apc stolen and their attack neutralised.

isnt it annoying when someone on your team does this?

can anyone think of anymore?

or dont you agree with me?

all comments appreciated.

I think you should change your first entry. When I first read it, I thought you meant that following a tank with a Hotwire and repairing it is n00bish when your team doesn't control the feild, which is just silly.

3. When you're on GDI, shooting at Stealth Tanks your teamates have stolen, thereby revealing them.

4. Buying an Orca/Apache (Or any unit) when the last 12 you bought got ripped apart by snipers

(Or equivilent counter) before even leaving the base.

5. Blocking your own teams harvester, intentionally.

6. Stealing a teamate's vehicle, especially if it's a stolen vechicle from the enemy, and especially when you get it killed without putting them to good use.

7. Use the GDI Rocket Officer when there's no reason not to use Gunner.

8. Insist on helping themselves instead of their team (i.e, refusing to disarm a beacon because you want to drive a Mammoth Tank instead, Not changing into an Engineer to save a dying structure, etc)

9) cheating
10) spamming
11) trying to place beacon as an sbh even though the other team has working base defence
12) refilling on sniper server
13) clickbot
14) trying to rush on your own/with very little backup
15) driving a vech on field even though it is full of raveshaws
16) overmining (god i hate that!)
17) beacon spamming (i hate that as well)
18) on a sniper server, tunnel looping
19) big head cheat/hack/what ever you would call it. (this is funny i tryed it lol)
20) Obi gliching

Well actually I did a one man apc rush, or should I say rushes. It was UNDER and it was a small game, I belive it was around 4 per team. I was on GDI I kept rushing and rushing and rushing, and after the second time I ended up with about 1000 or more credits. I know one thing, and that is: I sure kept the other team on their alert. When I had about 1500 credits or more then

I donated to the team. Eventually we rushed them with Apc's and Meds.(Which I helped buy by doing one man Apc rushes) I don't think that there were vehicle shells in that server.

Goztow wrote on Thu, 17 August 2006 02:24You know, the original 2 points are actually very good things to do in small games.

I was about to say similar - I always repair in the field, I just dont get out stand still and rep for 5 minutes waiting for it to be stolen. I will use a hottie/tech and repair in short bursts whilst keeping an eye for snipers/sbh - it beats never repairing or having to go all the way back to base to do it.

And one man APC rush is often a good idea, for example if you are on the defensive and can sneak out whilst everyone else defends.

Everything else seemed obvious but valid to me.

someone did that to me earlier on.

we were on mesa, a small game, and the n00b just sat there in his tank radioing 'i need repairs' i kept telling him to go an engineer, and when he finally listens, he leaves his tank on the entrance to the base, which was in good enough range for an enemy rav to take it out.

we won that game anyway, as when me and some other guy were attacking the power plant with meds, they werent reapiring it so we destroyed it no probs.

then i went back to the base, got a mobius and a beacon and took out the hand of nod, someone else took out the airstrip and ref, and then tried for the obi. they failed destroying the obi, but i took a mammy over to the base and finished what was left of it.

The no looping stuff is the worst bullshit I ever saw on snipe servers. One of the funniest parts in sniping is the fact you try to hide from people why shooting them. The element of surprise is also very nice. It's not all about the one that's best at hugging that damn wall, now is it?

Subject: Re: list of n00bish things to do in one sniper server (sod gaming) it is against the rules to 'tunnel loop' and you could get kicked if you get caught doing it.

then again, some of these 'sniping' servers have a 'tunnel only' rule, and arent what you'd expect a sniping server to be, as most of the time, the 'sniping' is short range!

I agree, but on servers like n00bstories, there is no !bl feature. A lot of the time (Especially in APCs or Humvees), I don't have an Engineer or Hotwire. Usually I lug around a Gunner or PIC Syndey or something in those cases. If the barracks is down, I'm not about to give up a PIC Syndey when there are three Hotwires sitting around me with nothing to do.

Renegade is still a team-based game. A little helping out your teammates won't hurt. I always stop and repair any wayward vechs when I can. Is it so wrong to expect the same in return?

with the situation i was in: yes;

as we had all our buildings, there werent many on their team.

they werent assaulting us so it wasnt like repairs were desperately needed.

it was on mesa so we had the agt defending us, all he had to do was quickly run to a pt and get an engi/hottie.

and yes, we were on a server where !bl worked.

in other situations i'd say no(say like they were rushing and repairs needed to be done simultanious to defending) sometomes though, it happens by accident, like a typo, as the E is right by the W.

it's quite funny actually, cos someone made this mistake on walls once. i was NOD, and we were pinned down by orcas, so i decided to get an apache to slow down their attack, and i beat them off quite well. but on of their drivers pressed E, and was hgh enough off the ground to die. so one of my teammates repairs the empty orca, gets in it, and me an him go for the ref. what he did was, he nuked the ref roof while i covered him. so with me and him covering the nuke, it was bye-bye refinery.

it goes to show, one little mistake could ruin an entire game for ypu lol

5. Blocking your own teams harvester, intentionally.

This really all depends on the situation.

Blocking the harvey can actually help you win if you think about it in the terms of them not being able to get pointed off it.

- Buying Apaches/Flames/Lights when everyone is blatantly screaming 'STANKS!!!' (especially if someone donates you 4 stank)

- Calling for Mammoth Rushes - FFS MAMMOTHS DONT RUSH THEY CRAWL (although they can be fun and they are 1337 with proper support)
- Complaining about refilling (learn how to "HEADSHOT")
- Complaining about Pedistal Beacons (Learn how to "DEFEND")
- Complaining how no one defends when you do nothng but sit in base as a SBH or w/e and dont even bother to buy a repair gun
- Shooting tanks with Sniper rifles (Dont lecture me about how u gain points, points are insignificant, it won't save your base)

Edit..these are just IMO.

To elabourate on the final point, I am aware of the effectiveness of snipers against things like recon bikes and Orcas/Apaches. These are quite effective countermeasures against quick manoeuvre/light armor vehicles. However they are completely USELESS against a flame rush. Somehow I don't think getting 50 points per shot is going to save your infantry bararcks.

The only server I have to buy tanks for others is =UN= cause they have donate disabled >.< otherwise I just donate. Prevents exactly such situations from occuring. However the down side is, people can still buy whatever vehicle they chose. Often when theres a stank rush happening on City Flying, you will get a couple of idiots who will buy apaches. or worse, buggies >.<

or worse someone gets a flamer and flames the stanks on approach. Have seen that a few times.

I was playing the other night and was running into the hand while a sniper was running out apparently to refill. Guess giving up his sniper rifle to save the hand wasn't on his mind. Lost the hand before I could get there but hey we got a sniper left with full ammo and health left so good for our team.

(whatever #, i lost track...). Being on a team full of uncoordinated idiots who think they can all take out the entire other team of 20 by themselves with an APC or Medium Tank, then proceeding to go in 1 at a time, get killed, come back, and swear at the other team.

Now I'm not the BEST AOW player, but I have some coordination logic, and could organize a decent rush, too bad all the n00bs don't listen!!!!

People who only ever play on 40 player public servers and then go on about tactics like they know what they are.

I've done one man APC rush with hotwire/tech myself and killed a building, the secret is to go when they are in your base attacking and your team is defending, no one in nod/gdi base then Do't think before you buy something. A Apache is very usefull against a field with lets say 5-10 Havocs g

Or buy a havoc when tere is a big big big medrush inc.

bump *

i once saw a hotty, putting about 10 mines on each door on hourglass. throughout the whole game, this hotty was mining and remining all the doors in the base because he didn't realize that he was overmining and his mines were going.

Heres something n00bish that effects the whole team:

Buy a gdi apc and position it facing the gdi weapon factory garage, once the harvester is going out to get more tiberium, go full speed backwards into it's side/rear and it'll do a flip or spin depending where you hit it, then the harvy has to go around this and that just to straighten back up....thus causing a greater wait for it to return.

the first time i ever played renegade online i was on field and gdi was tunnel beaconing.... and too many people were worried bout the airfield to repair the tib ref (the air was under attack from a med) so we lost it tunnel beacons are the sign of a noob. yes i can tunnel beacon, no i wont because that is so noobish. end of line.

ON AOW Marathon server, after a 4 hour game was in progress making a 78 light tank rush on NOD and and then not destroying a single, i repeat a single building........ Due to idiots not RUSHING, just taking them and running off into the field. Oh and that game, they repped 9 of the lights we rushed with. we had no vecs from then on out....

Oh and while massing, nubs taking the vecs you havent repaired so you cant vkick them, or throwing timed on the mass.

Or asking, what are all these tanks for...?????

Oh wait and last but not least telling the other team your mass is inc............ ..great!
